

Psalm 19

Haydn/J. Penner

Intro C

The heav - ens are

G C F G C

te - lling the glo - ry of Go - d.

C G Dm G C G Dm G

*The heavens declare the glory of God;
The skies do proclaim the works of His hands.
2For day after day their speech loudly pours forth,
And night after night knowledge rings out and stands.*

*3Like language and speech throughout the whole world,
So there is no place their voice is not heard.
4Their voice goes out unto the ends of the earth;
The whole world proclaiming His almighty word!*

*5The sun from his tent in heaven above
comes forth like a bridegroom, mounting the sky.
It's like a great champ-i-on running his course,
With joy as it travels its circuit on high!*

*6It rises to shine from heaven's far end;
Its circuit extends throughout the whole day.
There's nothing on earth that can hide from its heat;
Great warmth is enjoyed by all under its sway.*

*7The law of the Lord is perfect and sound,
For with it the soul is revived and crowned.
His statutes are trustworthy, making us wise;
8His precepts are right and they make joy abound.*

*Commands of the Lord are radiant and bright;
They light up the eyes and bring us new sight.
9The fear of the Lord is enduring and pure.
His laws and decrees are eternally right!*

*10Most precious are they, more precious than gold,
And sweeter by far than sweet honeycomb.
11By them is Your servant warned, and he is told,
"Rewards shall be yours in your heavenly home."*

*12O who can discern his errors and ways?
Forgive all my faults when from You I stray.
13And keep me from willful, habitual sin;
Then I will be blameless of great transgression.*

*14May words of my mouth and thoughts of my heart
be pleasing to You and clean in Your sight.
O Lord, You're my Rock in the day and the night,
And my true Redeemer in whom I delight.*